Howell Movie Club members attend film premiere

The Howell High School Movie Club recently attended the Michigan premier of the documentary, "Welcome to Unity" at the Historic Howell Theater.

The group was personally invited to attend the event along with community members and donors to the film's Kickstarter campaign.

"Welcome to Unity" follows a group of seven foreign exchange students from various European and Asian countries as they adjust to American life in the tiny rural town of Unity, Oregon. The film was mostly shot by the exchange students who were given Flip cameras to document their school year in their new surroundings.

The film was well received by the Movie Club members, who all appreciated the warm-hearted nature of the film and the way it resonated with their own lives as high school students.

After the screening, the film's director, Katharine Mahalic, held a question-and-answer session with the audience.

Movie Club members enjoyed this opportunity to interact with the director and explore the movie making process.
